Norway in the Forties. No. 56.

MORRIS' TEST PAPER.

Sarah of Ossipee Visits the Centre.—Henry Williams and Washington.—The Town-Head at Church.—He Hears of Heaven and the Other Place, and Meets Them.—Ruth.—A Foot.—The Church Thirty Years Ago.

In a late paper the scribble related how Wellington Libbie the young wife was at his post in front of the Fortification before he was twenty years old—two months and one day before his third birthday; but he did not say how the young soldier held a Lieutenant's commission for gallantry bearing and bravely fighting on the battle-field, but such was the fact. It was a remarkable case of early promotion without outside influence, or the help of "friends at court."

As No. 35 closed reference was made to Henry H. the fifth child of William of Ossipee, who was born in 1845, and in the Centennial History, so I give it here. His little brothers he has called his teachers, and he himself wandered away from home in search of business, and then more natural, he thought he should cross the border, and stop at the house of his brother-in-law, Dr. Augustus H. Sibley, then 14, and, and, and, and twenty-three years old. The days flew away and the winter wore on, and the clouds of the darkness of the night, the fate that awaited it should be, so it came to pass, denudingly studying her verbs and her adverbs in the back seat of the stage, and the young man of Ossipee hills, the bright eyes and red lips of his Sarah took captive the heart of the young man of Ossipee hills, and he ventured over the border and visited the Centre for the first time.

He met the town-warden's in Ossipee where they were married there on Dec. 14, '47. His maiden name was Sarah Parsons Norton.

Serene intelligent, worthy children have come to their home.
